Position: Exterior Fire Fighter

Medical Clearance

OSHA Law (CFR 1910.156, Section b, part 2) mandates that firefighters expected to perform structural fire fighting duties are physically capable of performing said duties.

CFR 1910.156 Subpart L Appendix A indicates firefighters who cannot meet the physical capability requirement may still be members of the fire brigade as long as such employees do not perform interior structural fire fighting. It is suggested that fire brigade members who are unable to perform interior structural fire fighting be assigned less stressful and physically demanding fire brigade duties.

I understand the nature of firefighting work and am familiar with the requirements of the above referenced OSHA standards. After having performed a medical evaluation of the above named employee, I hereby deem him/her medically cleared to perform non-interior structural fire fighting duties.

Comments: NOT cleared to perform interior structural fire fighting.
